

Abstract

A light (10, 11) of an apparatus for illumination of a sign (1), in particular of a traffic sign, is part of a unit (7, 8) which can be attached permanently to the existing sign and contains a power supply which is independent of the mains. In addition to the illumination of the sign, a further light (12) may also illuminate a surrounding area, for example areas of footpaths and roads.

(Figure 1)